Biographical Sketch, Northwest RAC Member

Dave Cesark, principal environmental specialist with Williams Production in Parachute, relocated about four years ago to western Colorado from the Four Corners area. He earned a Bachelor's Degree in geology from the University of Wyoming and, after a few years working as a petroleum geologist, switched to consulting in the industry for 14 years. Cesark is vice chair of the Northwest RAC and has been serving since 2003, representing Category 1, energy and minerals constituency.

Cesark feels strongly about upholding BLM's multiple-use mandate by balancing recreational opportunities with responsible energy development on public lands, while preserving and protecting those areas that are highly scenic and/or sensitive.

Cesark plays an active role in his community and industry, serving as president of the West Slope Chapter of the Colorado Oil & Gas Association, chair of Club 20's Energy Subcommittee, and on Garfield County's Energy Advisory Board. Cesark and his wife of over 16 years are raising three children in the Grand Valley. You'll likely find Cesark hiking, running and mountain biking on public lands, or enjoying a family camping trip or day of skiing. Photography is also a favorite pastime.
